There shouldn’t be a disconnect between service and the customer. Welcome to a program that earnestly defines the true embodiment of service and how to provide it. Roselyn Connor will offer up a non-cluttered powerful session on going beyond expectations, creating what the customer would love, understanding perception, identifying what makes customers angry and solving problems quickly. In the interaction that our organizations have with civic groups, regulatory agencies, media, donors, the people we serve and our employees and volunteers, we sometimes assume that because we have “communicated” that an effective exchange of ideas has occurred.
